But his followers will not be fooled...

Extract from The Life of Rabbi Nachman of Breslov "Chayee Moharan"

The Rebbe told the parable of a great merchant who was once traveling with choice Hungarian wine. His assistant and coach drive once told him, "Here we are traveling with this wine and working so hard to do so. Give us a bit to drink. A few days later, this assistant was sitting with other drinkers in a small town. They were sitting and drinking and praising the wine very much, calling it "Hungarian wine". This attendant then told them, "Give me a taste of it," and they gave him. Then he said, "I know that this is not Hungarian wine at all, for I was together with this great merchant, etc." But they paid him no attention. And the Rebbe concluded, "But in the future, when the Moshiach will arrive, when the 'hidden wine' is passed around, there will be those who will be able to be fooled. They will give them inferior Wallachsian's or Strovitsarian's wine and tell them that it is the 'hidden wine'." But his followers will not be fooled, for we have tasted the real good wine.

...for we have tasted the real, good, wine.
